Date of Joint Meeting Changed

Owing to the fact that the W.A. of the United Church are holding their annual bazaar on Nov. 21st, the joint meeting of the U.F.W. and U.F.W.A. will be held at home of Mr. and Mrs. R.R. McBride on this coming Saturday, Nov. 14th. The men are planning and serving the dinner promptly at 1 p.m.

A report of the meeting held by the Spanish delegation in the Grand Theatre Friday night will be given at this time.

On Tues. Nov. 2nd the U.F.W.A. and U.F.A. met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Ward Co-operation, the market trend, and matters of vital interest to the farmers were thoroughly discussed. The men volunteered to plan and prepare dinner at the next joint meeting Nov. 14. All members of the U.F.A. and U.F.W.A. with their wives and husbands are urged to attend.

The ladies reported that the quilt is ready to be put together as soon as a few outstanding blocks are returned. If you have one kindly hand it in to Mrs. Ellis or Mrs. J. Mason whether the embroidery is completed or not.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. D. Richards on Wed. Nov. 18th. Election of officers will take place at that time.

BUFFALO HILL NOTES

The Claude Broderick farm and the Wm. Marshall farm, which were operated last year by Mr. M. P. Marshall, will be farmed by a Coledale man the coming season.

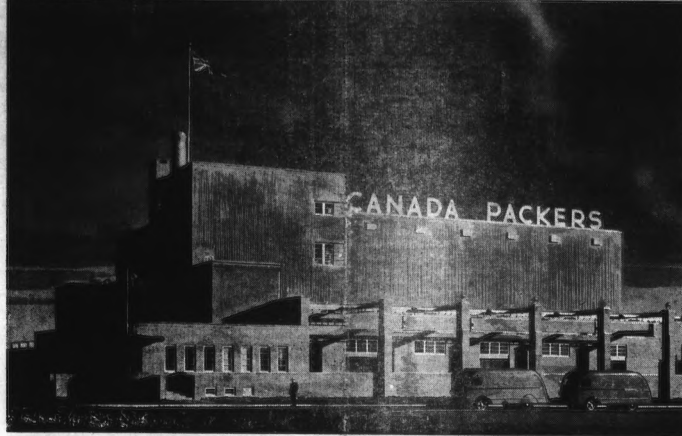

Oscar Bucher, of Broton, Alta., has been visiting with his brother-in-law, Mr. Hirst Goldthorpe, Sr., for a few days, as well as meeting some of the neighboring farmers of the district. He reports a fair crop of grain and vegetables and very few grasshoppers. At times there was an overabundance of moisture. If we had been favored with some of the surplus moisture here what a difference there would have been in our crops—but here's hoping that next year will be our turn, with expectations realized.

A social evening of the Union Jack Social study and business group was held at the Union Jack School on Fri. Nov. 6th. Four new members were added to the roll, making a total of 31 members for this group. Business to be taken up at the Constitution Convention. The group meets the first Friday in each month.

United Church Notes

There will be a talk to girls and boys about a little fox that is easily discouraged.

Sermon topic: "The finding of a Great Treasure." The sermon will deal with the Bible and its effect upon the lives of those who use it. If men and women in Canada appreciated all that the Bible has meant in the life of the nation they would probably treasure it more and make better use of it as share it with others who do not appreciate it and would use it if they only had the opportunity.

NEW PACKING PLANT FOR EDMONTON

Canada Packers' $1,000,000.00 Plant Officially Opened

The new million dollar packing house, erected last Summer in Edmonton by Canada Packers Ltd., was officially opened on Wednesday, Nov. 4, by Mayor Jos. A. Clark, K.C., in the presence of over 500 invited guests, including members of the Alberta Cabinet, Deputy Ministers, civic officials, heads of most of the livestock organizations of Alberta and representatives of the Wholesale and Retail meat trade and other distinguished visitors.

Speakers at the opening ceremony, which was staged in the enclosed loading platform of the plant, were Premier William Aberhart; R. A. Wright, President of Western Canada Livestock Union; Hon. Senator Arthur Meighen, and J. S. McLean, President of Canada Packers Ltd.

The plant is an outstanding example of what can be done in an industrial building to combine pleasing appearance with utility and efficiency. It is equipped with the most modern machinery and will have a killing capacity of 4,500 hogs weekly, besides cattle, sheep and lambs.

All speakers at the official opening ceremonies congratulated Canada Packers upon their wisdom in establishing so fine a packing plant in Alberta. Mr. McLean stated it as his conviction that Alberta, which already stands second in hog production amongst the provinces of the Dominion, will within a short time stand first. "When this expectation is realized," he said, "all the packing house facilities in Edmonton, including Canada Packers", will be less than sufficient to handle the hogs."

After the close of the opening ceremonies, the plant was thrown open to the public and was viewed with interest by thousands of visitors from Edmonton and surrounding districts.

The erection of this important plant at this time is concrete evidence of the faith of Canada Packers Ltd. in the future of Alberta, and of the West generally. It also gives to the livestock producers of Western Canada direct access to the markets of Eastern Canada and of Europe, which are served extensively by Canada Packers Ltd.

Complaint of Short Weight and Non-payment Received

Unlicensed Dealers Brings Complaints in North

Calgary, Nov. 9.—Complaint about short weights and non-payment for wheat being purchased by unlicensed purchasers by dealers through Alberta have been received at the offices of the board of grain commissioners here and prosecutions will follow. W. H. Blatchford stated today upon his return from a trip through the northern section of the province.

At Didsbury, Mr. Blatchford said an unlicensed buyer has been operating and several farmers had complained of non-payment following delivery. At Leduc some buyers purchasing grain from the farm and trucking into town are reported to be "chiseling" on weights.

One farmer complained a load of 125 bushels had returned him only the price of 115 bush; another in the same district stated he had been "short-changed" as high as 20 bus. on a truckload and other complaints were along similar lines.

The major difficulty, Mr. Blatchford states, is on the part of the farmers themselves in selling to men not licensed by the board and consequently not bonded.

The Grain Act specifies that all buyers must be licensed and bonded, the assistant commissioner said, and that farmers selling grain to other than recognized sources should be careful in that regard.

In any event precaution should be taken in the event of sale to unlicensed buyers, to be sure and have some reliable person in town verify delivery weights.

Brethren Church Notes

Communion and worship with us on Sunday, Nov. 15th. Rev. W. E. Bannan will speak at the morning service on the "Law of the Harvest." In the evening his theme will be "A Challenge to Youth"—a message of great interest to everyone.

Weather permitting the Arrowwood rugby team will play in Lethbridge on Saturday.

Bible School Notes

The Bible School continues its interest. The enrollment has more than tripled since the first week and the spirit of the school is wonderful. The evening class still continues to grow. Those who have delayed to enroll and want to make up the back work should get into the classes at once. Each lesson is a unit in itself and any one caring to come from time to time will find it profitable.

Entertainment Given By Kathleen H. Greene Greatly Enjoyed

The entertainment given by Miss Kathleen H. Greene under the auspices of the Ladies Aid in the school last Saturday was very interesting. Very many dramatic numbers, humorous selections, and monologues were rendered very effectively by Miss Greene. As a little girl nine years old, Kathleen spoke in the Brethren Church and even then showed great promise as a dramatic entertainer.

The musical number by Francis Mason and Donald Vancil was much appreciated.

The Ladies Aid would like to thank all those who helped in this program and especially Mrs. Phillips for her assistance at the piano.

Miss Greene also gave a splendid story entitled "The Lost Word" at the Brethren Church Sunday morning.

MOSSLEIGH NOTES

The third meeting of the recently formed Mossleigh Dramatic Club was a gala event, about forty members and visitors gathering for the usual good time.

The President, Mr. Earl Bass, and the Secretary, Miss Dawson, engineered the business meeting through at a fast speed and the Town Group presented a hang-up program, with music, tap dancing, dialogue, readings, and those "Everybody's Sweethearts"—the Shirley Temple quartette.

Lunch was served by the Town Group and everyone made quick work of the stack of hamburger sandwiches.

The floor was then cleared for dancing, and everyone enjoyed the music of Miss Grace Campbell, Pat Mais and Hank Hughes.

The Club is presenting a play early in December and it promises to be an event well worth your while to bear in mind—watch for the date.

A large number of the parents and members of the community attended the program presented by the pupils of the school on Tuesday as the culmination of the enterprises which have been carried on in the primary and junior grades. The talks given by the pupils about their work and the exhibits and models they prepared were of exceptionally high standard.

A program of entertaining numbers were given and lunch was served by the senior girls.

Commendation of the new Enterprise System was expressed by all.

Mr. and Mrs. Pinkerton were Calgary visitors over the weekend.

Local teachers, including Miss Barrons, Miss Dawson, Miss Six, Miss Short, Mr. Anderson and Mr. Taylor are attending Convention in Calgary this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon MacDonald visited in Calgary last week.

Thou Shalt Not Love

— A NOVEL BY
— GEORGIA GRAY

Her lips quivered. "You don't mean a home and babies?" Michael said grimly. "That's exactly what I do mean! It should be the ideal of every man and woman. I know that it is mine! Fine sons—beautiful daughters—"

Michael, caught in a tide of emotion, which he hardly perceived himself, did not notice that Starr was shivering.

In imagination a parade passed before her eyes. Sturdy little men with clear gray eyes like Michael's; little girls with yellow hair like Stephanie's. A terrible pain twisted her heart. For a second she lost all consciousness of the daring role she had elected to play. The doomed Starr Ellison saw the ghost of her forbidden happiness.

In imagination, too, she was transported back to that busy, three-thousand-year-old town with its damp, bright-painted walls, and the voice of John Leasing was droning the curse of Tut-Amen-Ra.

"Thou—and thy children—and thy children's children—"

With a tremendous effort of will she shook herself free of her morbid memories. She could not afford to remember. There was no Starr Ellison who was cursed—doomed. It was the soulless "Play-Girl" who laughed into Michael's face.

"Hissan—how quaint! You do belong in an Arabian Night's tale, don't you? Girls don't have babies these days, do they?"

"I guess your kind don't!" A spell was snapped. The battle was on again. Drawn daggers flashed. Michael said scathingly:

"I'm a fool—a double-edged fool! I was trying to talk to you in a language you don't understand! I should take you for what you are, just like every other man who accepts your careless favors! Perhaps, after all, it was right in the first place, and that is the language you understand better—it certainly must be more familiar to you!"

He pulled his car up to the curb before her apartment house so suddenly that Starr was almost jolted out of her seat. Instantly she was a little toward him. His hand went out to aid her—and instead he caught her into an embrace so savage that it hurt her. His arm held her craftily while his kisses rained on her ice-cold face, wiped the mockery from her scarlet mouth.

They were the rough, hard, ruthless kisses of a man who wanted to hurt the one he holds in his arms, but even so, in the depths of her subconsciousness Starr was affronted in a warm sea of unknown, strange delight. Kisses—Michael's kisses—which bruised heart as well as lips.

Breathless, she pulled away, staring at him in fright from the deep pools of her dark eyes. She did not speak. Nor did Michael.

With a swift gesture Starr opened the door and slipped from the car. Instantly Michael's foot was on the starter, the car roared at his touch on the accelerator, and he rounded the corner and was out of sight before Starr could catch her breath. As she stepped into the elevator and felt it shoot skyward, she felt that all her courage, too, was synthetic as herself. It was coming away in an ebullition of terror. How was she ever going to stand the bitterness of it? Six months now seemed an eternity.

CHAPTER IX.

Starr came from her rose-bued, lotus-scented bath. Her skin was flushed from her pink towelings, but she felt cold inside. Cold with the remembrance of Michael's kisses.

Other men had kissed "Play-Girl." That was to be expected. How could she help it with the reputation? That was all part of the stage props. Lance had kissed her, Tod Ranger—others. But none of them had ever inspired her with the intense feeling that Michael's kisses did. The deep thrill that had shaken her body, making her blood race along like fire, was something she had never imagined.

She sat down before her little mirrors over her lace-draped dressing table, drawing a filmy negligee about herself. She had allowed herself barely enough time to dress for Tod's party. She always did that. The only life possible for her was continual running from one party to another, from one thrill to another, from one man to another! Michael had made that possible in making her "Play-Girl" and ever since her first appearance as the author of the notorious book there had been no lack of invitations. Society, the madly-rushing, headless, decadent younger set, had opened arms to her. She went everywhere; life was a whirl. Which was what she wanted it to be.

DOUGLIE ROYAL HOUSEHOLD FLOUR
TRIPLE-TESTED FLOUR

She was afraid to be alone, afraid of the solitude of her own thoughts.

So she sought forgetfulness, crowding into her days and nights a world of synthetic emotions, in a feverish attempt to recompense her real self, not the synthetic one she had become, for the one genuine emotion which must be denied. Love!

In the fact to which Michael and the Tarrance Publishing Company had introduced her they played; they danced; they kissed; they made violent love which was not love at all. They did not truly love—any of them. And though she was capable of it, she must not.

She pressed her fingers against her throbbing temples, the deadly weariness that she always felt in these quiet, frightening moments dragging at her limbs again. How long could she keep it up? Michael had sensed and spoken more truly than he knew. Lance was becoming more and more difficult to handle. He wanted more than kisses. And now there was Michael.... Michael? She dared not think of Michael.

"Thou Shalt Not Love," was to Starr as real a command as to be blazed before her eyes in words of fire.

Her comfortably proportioned colored serving woman's voice disturbed her thoughts.

"What-all's the matter, Miss Starr?" the woman wanted to know. "Is somebody done hurt your feelings? You look so all kind o' tuckered out and like you didn't care for nothin'!"

Starr lifted her head to smile at the woman. She was grateful for her companionship, certain here of a loyalty she found nowhere else. Her maid's concern was real. Michael, of course, had thought Starr should have an Arab woman, but they had compromised on a negress who looked like a blackamoore. She was from North Carolina and her name was Shappira, enough like the Arabic Satiyah, if it came to that, to suit anybody. She cared not at all about being a synthetic Arab, but she did care—and boasted of it continuously in Harlem—about the collection of silver bangles and bright-budded headbands she was allowed to wear, instead of the usual unform other colored maids had to assume. She did not care so much for the mustahabiyh windows. They made it a bit hard to see what was going on in the world, and Miss Starr was always gadding off some place.

Starr told Shappira: "No, nobody's hurt my feelings. I've just got a good case of the heebie-jeebies, I guess, Shappira. Life seems to be a useless sort of thing."

The colored woman shook her head. "What 'I speck, Miss Starr, is that you-all are burnin' your candle both ends too much. What you need is to fall plumb in love with jar one o' these men that's rumm' after you so much, an' git married.... That's what...."

Little Helps For This Week

Thou shalt guide me with Thy counsel, and afterwards receive me to glory. Psalm 73:24.

Guide us through life, and when at last We enter into rest, Thy tender arms around us cast, And fold us up to Thy breast.

Go forth to conquer the trials of existence, believing in a Shepherd who souls. Then faith in Him will support you in duty, and duty firmly dethroned will strengthen faith. Then when the strife of the earthly battle fades and you hear instead the musical sound of the ocean of eternity, your faith will raise the song of conquest, and its forward glance upon the life -- come will take up the inspiration of the Hebrew king, "Barely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life, and I will dwell in the house of the Lord forever."

Scientists cannot explain why every native of Tliltotec, a small town in Mexico, is either born blind or loses his or her sight soon after birth.

A poultice of oatmeal and cold water will draw the fire from a burn.

Robert Gardiner, President of the U.F.A., will address a public meeting at the Berrywater School at 8 p.m. on Friday, Nov. 13th.

The Arrowwood School is closed until Monday morning. The teachers are all attending the convention being held in Calgary this week.

Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Phillips, of Milo, are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Phillips, of Arrowwood.

The many friends of Mr. H. McCullough, formerly of the Arrowwood School staff, will regret to hear that he is confined to his home at Alderside, suffering from Scarlet Fever.

The annual fall bazaar, sponsored by the W.A. of the Arrowwood, United Church will be held in the Social Credit Hall on Saturday, Nov. 21st at 3 p.m. Sewing and fancy work, home cooking, candy and afternoon tea.

Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Ward and Mr. and Mrs. R. R. McBride attended the annual meeting of the Macleod Federal Constituency Association of the U.F.A. held at Claresholm on Wed., Nov. 4th. They report a very good meeting. Some splendid discussions on co-operative marketing took place, also an election of officers was held.

The Calgary Presbytery of the United Church will meet in Central United Church, Calgary on Thurs., Nov. 19th. There will be three sessions, commencing 9 a.m., 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. In the evening delegates who attended the meeting of General Council in Ottawa in September will present their reports. Every congregation is entitled to a representative at Presbytery.

Remember that R. N. Moir's private sale continues until Monday the 16th.

Mr. S. M. Burger will lead the Sunday evening service of the S.Y.F.D. A large attendance is desired.

While skating last week Donald Williams fell on the ice fracturing both bones of the forearm. He was rushed to town where he was attended by Dr. E. J. Liesemer.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Evans and family, of Gleichen, were Sunday visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Brown.

Tommy Thompson of Retlaw, Alta., arrived here last Sunday and will remain here for some time. His many friends will be pleased to know that Tommy has again decided to become one of us. It will be remembered that some two or three years ago he was employed as head mechanic by Larsen Implements and we are reliably informed that he will again be employed by this firm.

The hard time party which was held in the Social Credit Hall on Tuesday evening was attended by a large number of local young people. The prizes for the best hard-time costume went to Margaret Richards and Jean Royer.

The evening was spent in playing various well chosen games most of which were original. After lunch Mr. Currie gave a short address thanking all present for their co-operation. This was replied to by Mr. Leroy Graham.

The party broke up with the singing of the Maple Leaf Club theme song, "The Maple Leaf Forever."

The next meeting will be held in the Social Credit Hall on Thurs., Nov. 24. All members are asked to be present in the official dress.
